Welcome to the FMF Virtual Exhibit Hall

A completely re-imagined experience! We are absolutely thrilled to have you join us at our innovative FMF Virtual Exhibit Hall. The Virtual Exhibit Hall provides an interactive and exciting way to discover new products and services.

- Browse associations, educators, clinical services, practice solutions, recruiters, and more
- Navigate easily—simply browse by name or search by tags, categories, and keywords
- Download product information, guidelines, practical tips, and watch informative videos
- Answer surveys and polls and find out what your peers are thinking; connect on social media
- Connect and interact with exhibitors via chat in the virtual tradeshow booth
- Gain points on the Game Leaderboard by visiting and interacting with exhibitors

New Exhibit Hall hours this year— all four days!

Wednesday, November 4th to Saturday, November 7th, from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. (ET).

New this year! Live interaction with exhibitors on all four conference days. After-hours and on-demand you can click an exhibitor staff link and send a direct message or leave a message in the chat window.

New this year! Need additional information? Forgot to visit an exhibitor? The Virtual Exhibit Hall will be available to all attendees after FMF. You will be still able to visit the booth and view all documents and videos. Most importantly you can connect with an exhibitor after the show ends for 30 days!

The Power of One: AccuroEMR

The FMF Exhibit Hall is a marketplace that provides delegates the opportunity to interact with exhibitors offering a wide range of products and services. Some may be controversial but all contribute to the dialogue that makes FMF a vibrant intellectual experience. CFPC does not endorse or accept responsibility for the presence of inaccurate or biased materials. We make every effort to ensure that exhibitors abide by professional and ethical standards of behavior and we are confident that our registrants will employ their excellent critical thinking abilities when reviewing the exhibits.

Le Hall d'exposition du FMF est un marché qui permet aux délégués d'interagir avec des exposants, qui offrent un large éventail de produits et services. Certains d'entre eux pourraient s'avérer controversés, mais tous contribuent au dialogue qui fait du FMF une expérience intellectuelle riche et dynamique. Le CMFC n'appuie pas et n'est pas responsable de toute documentation inexacte ou qui exprime un parti pris. Nous mettons tout en œuvre pour faire en sorte que les exposants respectent des normes de comportement professionnelles et éthiques, et nous sommes persuadés que les délégués feront appel à leur excellent sens critique au moment d'évaluer les kiosques.

CMA Policy Practising physicians should not accept personal gifts of any significant monetary or other value from industry. Physicians should be aware that acceptance of gifts of any value has been shown to have the potential to influence clinical decision making.

Politique de l'AMC Il incombe aux médecins qui acceptent des échantillons ou d'autres produits de soins de santé de veiller à noter le type et la quantité de médicament ou de produit dispensé. Il leur incombe aussi de veiller à ce que les échantillons ne soient pas périmés, de s'assurer de leur sécurité et de voir à disposer des produits inutilisés.

Insulinnovation

In 1921, Doctors Banting and Best were the first to isolate insulin from the pancreas of a dog. A year later, their discovery was used to save the life of a 14-year old boy with type 1 diabetes. But that innovation was just the beginning.

We started with Banting and Best and made it better.

In 1936, Novo Nordisk was the first to introduce slower-acting insulins. By the 1970s, synthetic insulins had been developed and by the early 1980s, the first biosynthetic human insulin was commercially available.

And we didn't stop there.

The history of insulin is one of continuous innovation – until there is a cure.

A MDD ADJUNCT TREATMENT OPTION^{1*}

Pr REXULTI®

Stepping into the picture in major depressive disorder (MDD)¹

When the MDD journey leads to an adjunct treatment, choose REXULTI[†]

[†] Clinicians must take into account the safety concerns associated with antipsychotic drugs.

In trial 4 (PYXIS), the SDS (Sheehan Disability Scale) Mean score showed statistically significant greater improvement with antidepressant + REXULTI (2 mg/day) at week 6 than with antidepressant + placebo (-1.35 vs. -0.91; $p < 0.05$; key secondary endpoint).^{1‡}

REXULTI is indicated for use as an adjunct to antidepressants for the treatment of major depressive disorder (MDD) in adult patients with an inadequate response to prior antidepressant treatments during the current episode.¹

Clinical use:

Safety concerns of this class include: weight gain; hyperlipidemia; hyperglycaemia; tardive dyskinesia; and neuroleptic malignant syndrome. *REXULTI® should only be prescribed in patients with MDD by clinicians who are aware of the importance and are experienced in the early detection and management of the safety issues associated with this class of drugs.

The efficacy and safety of REXULTI in the adjunctive treatment of MDD were demonstrated in 6-week, double-blind, placebo-controlled trials in adult patients. Therefore, the required length of adjunctive treatment with REXULTI is not known. When prescribed as an adjunct to antidepressants in the treatment of MDD, REXULTI should be used for the shortest period of time that is clinically indicated. It is not known whether efficacy in adjunct treatment is due to REXULTI alone or from combined treatment with an antidepressant.

- Not indicated in geriatric patients >65 years of age with dementia and caution should be used when treating geriatric patients
- Not indicated in pediatric patients <18 years of age and its use is not recommended in this population

Most serious warnings and precautions:

Elderly patients: Elderly patients with dementia treated with atypical antipsychotic drugs are at an increased risk of death compared to placebo. Analyses of 13 placebo-controlled trials with various atypical antipsychotics (modal duration of 10 weeks) in these patients showed a mean 1.6-fold increase in the death rate in the drug-treated patients.

Other relevant warnings and precautions:

- Body temperature regulation
- For patients with diseases, conditions, or medications that could exacerbate somnolence, postural hypotension, motor and sensory instability, complete fall risk assessments when initiating antipsychotic treatment and recurrently for patients on long-term antipsychotic therapy.
- Orthostatic hypotension; generally at highest risk at the beginning of treatment and during dose escalation
- Risk of QT interval prolongation; exercise particular care when administering REXULTI to patients who are suspected to be at an increased risk of experiencing torsade de pointes.
- Patients should be evaluated carefully for a history of drug abuse.
- Patients should have baseline and periodic monitoring of blood glucose and body weight. Any patient treated with atypical antipsychotics should also be monitored for symptoms of hyperglycemia. Patients who develop symptoms of hyperglycemia during treatment with atypical antipsychotics should undergo fasting blood glucose testing.
- Patients with risk factors for diabetes mellitus who are starting treatment with atypical antipsychotics should undergo fasting blood glucose testing at the beginning of treatment and periodically during treatment. Patients with an established diagnosis of diabetes mellitus who are started on atypical antipsychotics should be monitored regularly for worsening of glucose control.
- Antipsychotic drugs have been associated with metabolic changes, including weight gain.
- Clinical monitoring of weight is recommended.
- Undesirable alterations in lipids have been observed in subjects treated with atypical antipsychotics. Patients should have baseline and periodic monitoring of fasting lipid profile.
- Like other antipsychotics, REXULTI can elevate prolactin levels. Elevations associated with REXULTI treatment are generally mild and may decline during administration, however, in some infrequent cases the effect may persist during chronic administration.
- Rare cases of priapism have been reported with antipsychotic use.
- Events of leukopenia/neutropenia have been reported temporally related to antipsychotic agents. Agranulocytosis has also been reported. Therefore, it is recommended that patients have their complete blood count (CBC) tested prior to starting REXULTI and then periodically throughout treatment. Patients with a history of a clinically significant low white blood cell count (WBC) or drug-induced leukopenia/neutropenia should have their CBC monitored frequently during the first few months of therapy and discontinuation of REXULTI should be considered at the first sign of a clinically significant decline in WBC in the absence of other causative factors.
- Venous thromboembolism
- Serious hypersensitivity reactions, such as anaphylaxis, angioedema and facial swelling, rash and urticaria
- Drug reaction with eosinophilia and systemic symptoms (DRESS)
- Neuroleptic malignant syndrome is a potentially fatal symptom complex that has been reported in association with antipsychotic drugs.
- Tardive dyskinesia may develop in patients treated with antipsychotic drugs.
- Use cautiously in patients with a history of seizures or with conditions that lower the seizure threshold.
- Potential to impair judgment, thinking, or motor skills; may cause somnolence
- Completed suicide, attempted suicide, suicidal behavior and suicidal ideation have been reported during post-market use of REXULTI.
- Patients with a prior history of impulse-control disorder may be at increased risk and should be monitored carefully.
- Consider dose reduction or stopping REXULTI in patients who develop compulsive behaviors that may result in self-harm and harm to others.
- REXULTI should not be used during pregnancy unless the expected benefits to the mother markedly outweigh the potential risks to the fetus. It is recommended that women receiving REXULTI should not breast-feed.
- Geriatrics (>65 years of age): Dose selection should be cautious, usually starting at the low end of the dosing range. In placebo-controlled trials with some atypical antipsychotics, there was a higher incidence of cerebrovascular adverse events including fatalities compared to placebo-treated subjects. Esophageal dysmotility and aspiration have been associated with antipsychotic drug use, including REXULTI.
- Patients with hepatic impairment: For patients with MDD and moderate to severe hepatic impairment (Child-Pugh score ≥ 7), the maximum recommended dosage is 1.25 mg once daily.
- Patients with renal impairment: For patients with MDD and moderate, severe or end-stage renal impairment (creatinine clearance [CLcr] <60 mL/minute), the maximum recommended dosage is 1.25 mg once daily.
- CYP2D6 poor metabolizers: Dosage adjustments are recommended.
- REXULTI tablets contain lactose.

* Comparative clinical significance is unknown.

† Results from a phase 3, 6-week, randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled fixed-dose trial in adult patients who fulfilled the DSM-IV-TR criteria for MDD, with or without symptoms of anxiety, had an inadequate response to 1–3 prior antidepressant treatment(s) in current episode and an inadequate response during 8 weeks of prospective antidepressant treatment. Patients remained on background antidepressant treatment and were randomized to receive adjunct placebo (n=191) or adjunct REXULTI (0.5 mg/day for week 1, 1 mg/day for week 2, 2 mg/day for week 3 onwards; n=187).
