Thursday, November 9, 2023

9:45 am – 10:15 am Shingles Outcomes Beyond the Rash: The Importance of Prevention

Location – Exhibit Hall Main Stage

Family practice is critical in equipping patients with relevant information around disease prevention and immunization. Many Canadian adults at-risk of developing Herpes Zoster (HZ) remain unvaccinated and therefore are at risk of the painful, debilitating consequences of shingles. Multiple environmental factors play a role in a clinician's capacity to recommend immunizations. During this talk, speakers will lead practical discussions on how to identify patients at risk of developing HZ who may benefit from immunization (age, comorbidities, etc.), best practice and clinical tools to support patient counselling (including latest data on persistence of protection), as well as methods of improving communication along the patient pathway to ensure patients do not miss their opportunity to be protected are more relevant now than ever.

10:30 am – 12:30 pm Curriculum Interest Group Networking Meeting

Location: Palais des congrès de Montréal, Level 5

12:45 pm-1:15 pm It's Respiratory Season: RSV and Older Adults - What you need to know

Location: Exhibit Hall Main Stage

In Canada and worldwide, respiratory syncytial virus (RSV) represents a large burden of disease yet there is low awareness particularly in the older adult population. Due to age related decline in immunity (ARDI) and other factors, older adults are at increased risk for vaccine preventable diseases and complications from these diseases. This sponsored presentation is centered around building knowledge on RSV disease state, burden of disease, current standard of care and preventative strategies. This includes discussion on risk of RSV disease as related to age and at-risk populations such as those with certain co-morbidities. In addition, the activity will include a discussion on current evidence in RSV prevention and the role of family medicine in supporting patients during the RSV season and beyond.

All events are listed in ET and dates, times and events are subject to change, check back for updates fmf.cfpc.ca/program

Unless marked by invitation only or tickets required, everyone is welcome no pre-registration required

- 3:00pm – 3:30pm Incorporating Innovation and Equity in Virtual Care
Location: Exhibit Hall Main Stage
Virtual care is reshaping healthcare, promising accessibility, convenience, and innovation. It transcends geographical constraints, making quality healthcare more accessible. Patients benefit from convenient remote consultations, fostering engagement and preventive care. However, to advance equity, there are elements that need to be in place, including digital literacy, culturally competent care, affordable connectivity, data security and community engagement. This talk explores how these promises can be made whole to ensure that virtual primary care benefits everyone, regardless of background or location.
